Providing needed support for gynecologic research
Mission Statement

The GOG Foundation is a U. S. not-for-profit organization with the sole purpose of promoting excellence in the quality and integrity of clinical and basic scientific research in the field of gynecologic malignancies.

The GOG Foundation promotes awareness for gynecologic malignancies through education and clinical trials. The Group conducts gynecologic trials at academic institutions throughout the United States, and internationally. Trials are conducted at the institutional level with focus on Phase I through III cancer trials. The Group’s main objective is to provide an appropriate vehicle to test new ideas for the prevention and management of patients with gynecologic malignancies. The GOG Foundation has completed over 300 clinical trials and contributed over 550 manuscripts to peer reviewed medical literature.

New Horizons Gynecologic Cancer Research Fund

In 2007, the GOG Foundation recognized that a fundraising arm through the non-profit corporation must be developed and promoted if we are to continue to bolster basic research and translational research activities within the GOG Foundation. This fundraising arm, later named New Horizons Gynecologic Cancer Research Fund is the philanthropic arm for the GOG Foundation with collaboration within the Group. New Horizons was developed and funded through donations and fund raising activities such as 5k races and other awareness events. These donations have become the source of income that allows the GOG to enrich our efforts to develop and deliver essential research tools needed to further our trial development and translational research program. Donations from individuals, corporations, and foundations directly fund GOG Foundation educational and research initiatives. Together, we partner to search for speedy treatments, more effective prevention and promoting excellence in scientific research in the field of gynecologic malignancies.

With current economic conditions, the GOG Foundation relies on these donations to provide needed funds for projects that would not fall under the Federal Funding Guidelines. The GOG Foundation is committed to maintaining the highest standards in clinical trial development, execution, analysis and distribution of results. Continuous evaluation of our processes is utilized in order to constantly improve the quality of patient care.

Without clinical trials and scientific research and development, we would not be closer to a cure. Each donation received by the GOG Foundation will go directly to provide:

- Much needed resources to effectively work toward the prevention and treatment of gynecologic malignancies
- Accessible research funding
- Ability to mentor New Investigators through fellowship awards
- Opportunity to raise public awareness through education and research
- Translational medicine initiatives across the disease committees
- Technology and operations needs of the GOG Foundation

Women who have been diagnosed with a gynecologic malignancy depend on clinical trials to combat this disease.
